

I used to work for brokers of radio and television stations. At that time there was a strict limit of how many stations any one company can own. Now they have liberalized the laws and look what we have. The owner of a large media company can dictate what their audiences can and cannot see and, therefore, have the ability to manipulate public opinion to suit their own politics. This is not the American way and should not be tolerated. The laws must go back to the limits of the past where too much ability to influence was not held in the hands of a few.
